2010 Creative Writing Award

Stories and poems are powerful ways of sharing the vision and depth of Family Medicine, its philosophy of care and scope of practice.

We invite submissions of written materials that derive from the experience of teaching/learning or practicing Family Medicine. Faculty, clinicians and medical students in the northeast region of the US are eligible to participate. Stories, poems, and other forms of fiction or non-fiction writing are welcomed. A panel of reviewers composed of Family Medicine faculty and creative professionals experienced in manuscript evaluation will review each submission with an eye to its critical reflection, emotional honesty and technical merit.

Submissions may be no longer than 1500 words. Pieces published or pending publication at a national level (magazines, journals, and books with a national circulation) prior to the award date (October 2010) are not eligible for this award. An author may submit a maximum of one poem and one prose piece.

The best submissions will be honored at the 2010 FMEC Northeast Region Meeting in its Awards Booklet. All submissions will remain the property of the author.

The awards will be presented at the 2010 FMEC Northeast Region Meeting October 29—31, 2010, to be held at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center in Hershey, PA. Authors of winning submissions will receive a complimentary registration to the 2010 FMEC Northeast Region Meeting. Authors are responsible for their own travel and lodging expenses.
